ON THIS THANKSGIVING, WE'RE THANKFUL FOR YOU!

Health and Hellos for Families

Migrant families who headed back to Florida this fall were welcomed at their homes by RCMA staff. We actively seek out returning and new members of our community to enroll their children in our child development centers and schools. And this fall, we hosted 8 free health fairs at our sites throughout the state to provide essential wellness screenings and vaccinations. Read more about how your donations fund these programs.

Thanksgiving Traditions

Jordan Castaneda, a kindergartner at our Wimauma Community Academy, is thankful for his house, his school and his fish. Expressing gratitude is just one way we teach students about the Thanksgiving holiday.

RCMA's bicultural curriculum helps students at our 65 child development centers and 2 charter schools, most of whom are Hispanic, learn about American culture while honoring the culture in which they were raised. They dug into a traditional feast with us while learning about the history of the holiday. Read what they are grateful for and see their smiling, gravy-covered faces in our Facebook album.
